Program starts at July 2022

Customer Relationship Management

Deliver the Best Possible Customer Value
and Build Lasting Relationships with Customers

OVERVIEW

In this era of hyper-competition, customer relationships are critical for the success of a business. Effective customer management helps to maintain a high touch in this high-tech environment. Customer Relationship Management (CRM) is the process of building and maintaining profitable customer relationships by delivering superior value and higher satisfaction to the customer. CRM acts as a source of competitive advantage and can also be a good brand differentiator in the crowded marketplace. By focusing on process, strategy, and technology, this course examines CRM as a strategic process that will help the participants to develop and nurture customer relationships through a deepened understanding of the concepts and best practices of CRM. The participants will learn to create effective customer management and loyalty programs in different industries.
